Council Still Wrestling with Question Of Whether to Continue Rent Control

"Do we want to continue it? That's the main question," remarked Borough Mayor Robert W Cawley this week, as Council planned to meet this Wednesday at an 8 p.m. work session to talk about rent leveling

In any case, Mayor Cawley promised another public meeting like last Tuesday's If Council decides on a new rent leveling ordinance, there will be a chance for the public to speak at the hearing. If Council decides to let rent leveling die, the public will be invited to comment on that, too.

Mayor Cawley doesn't think the present ordinance has been very effective in controlling the rental market. He doesn't think the proposed changes will preserve that socio-economic mix the Borough likes so much, because when a tenant moves out, the landlord can negotiate any rent at all with the new tenant.

Letting rent control die would save a little money the rent-leveling office is open 14 hours a week and costs the Borough about $3,640 a year in hourly staff wages.

Changes proposed by the citizens committee that studied rent leveling would mean eliminating exemptions so that all rents are included. (The present ordinance exempts rentals over $400 a month) It would use only the rental section of the Consumer Price Index as a guide, and it would allow negotiation with a new tenant Landlords, last Tuesday, said rent leveling favors tenants. Tenants said it favored landlords.

"There is seldom a sympathetic concern for the ordinary citizen—you only want to make certain property-owner incomes are guaranteed," charged Jacqueline Rogers, 277-A Franklin, a tenant member of the Rent Control Board. "While there is inflation and a shortage of rentals, control is necessary."

"Landlords" costs go up, too," replied Robert Cook, 2 Hamilton, and landlord Benjamin Kahn pointed out that insurance has tripled, and utility costs "zoomed."

"We just about make it," he commented "I try to keep rents down because I feel sorry for people. I'm not against rent control, although I'd like to see it abolished."

"Nobody owning property is losing money," declared tenant Charles Crider

He told Council that his Bank Street apartment was an illegal one that has just been discovered by Borough officials. Now he must 'rever He charged that the owner had violate, the registration requirements, the health registration requirements and had never been fined.

"Council should do re-zoning-legalize that apartment!" declared Kenneth Rendall, of Rendall-Cook & Company, a firm that manages real estate properties

He said that because of rent control, houses in Princeton have been converted back to larger units. On Park Place, he said, there are now two units where there used to be three, on Charlton, there are abandoned houses and on Murray Place, houses converted to condominiums.

Proposals to Develop Income Potential of Schools To Be Unveiled at Public Meeting Next Tuesday

Radical proposals that would move the very roots of Princeton's public schools, if they were adopted, will be shown to school board and public next Tuesday (8 p.m., Valley Road), by their author, consultant Niels H. Nielsen.

In his report, "Strategy for the 80s," Mr. Nielsen says the schools must change their perception about their mission.

"From being a purely taxsupported governmental body charged with teaching school-age children compulsorily — to becoming a mixed-revenue educational institution, competing to serve the whole population of the district, and parts of the population of a wider geographic area."

He proposes changing the school system into a not-for-profit corporation, which "could give Princeton the vitality and decisiveness of a corporation, coupled with the political sensitivity of a public body."

- The corporation would develop the income potential of the schools' $23,674,500 real estate and the system's equipment
- It would manage rental properties, the investment of liquid assets, and food service
- It would oversee land development projects, conduct market research, product planning and marketing activities, develop and market consulting services, conduct fund drives and supervise an endowment fund
- Net proceeds would go into a trust fund which would provide money for the school district to pay for public education.

All this money – and Superintendent Paul Houston smiles when he hears Mr. Nielsen point this out – would be exempt from New Jersey's cap limitations

Examples:

Mr Nielsen suggests developing the Valley Road property to provide apartments for young, moderate-income families; stores, a medical center, "Y", offices, parks Counting the playing fields, he says, the area is about equal to Palmer Square

Since the excellence of Princeton's public schools is one of the things that attract people, endowments should be sought from corporations and individuals. Money would endow "chairs" in public school science, math, humanities and pay for labs and shops.

Special teachers, experts like school dieticians and program developers, could be consultants whose services are sold to other school systems.

The excellence of the system should be marketed, and Princeton should compete with private schools, do market research to identify the competition, set competitive prices, determine what needs are not being met, and design diversified offerings to meet those needs.

Mr Nielsen, in his report, compares Princeton's school finances to those of "a moribund company – railroads"

The system is asset-rich, liquid and relatively debt-free, he says. It has had conservative management, It is, like railroads, restricted by laws and contracts. It has a disappearing market – declining enrollment – for a single product. It has a narrow concept of business: railroads think of themselves as "transportation;" public schools think of themselves as "education."

"Go outside the conventional boundaries," he advises, "and think of all forms of institutionalized learning."

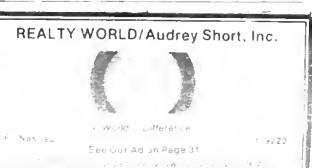

District finances are in good shape, he says: expenditures have risen only moderately, in spite of inflation; there is a modest surplus each year; there is a lot of money in the bank and a "negligible" debt.

He suggests, for example, that retirement plan costs might be cut by switching to another plan, or getting out of Social Security. He recommends cutting medical in-surance costs by joining with other districts and Borough and Township for increased huying power, and asking employees to share the cost of the plan.

Support-staff salaries have gone up faster than either teachers' nr administrators' salaries, he found. He suggests using retired teachers, reducing clerical work, increasing the use of aides if it's cost-effective.

Incidentally, Mr. Nielsen smilingly recalls that he was the first to discover how much money had been spent on administration.

"I blew the whistle quantified it. But the mamentum has been too great, and we've cut back too much. It is jost not possible to run a $12 million enterprise with this lean administrative staff.

He wants to see Princeton: farm out food services to bosinesses or other schools ... rent shop facilties and tennis courts ... charge institutions like Princeton University nr the Institute for Advanced Stady for teaching English to the children of staff tacilities that are now almost given away. (The Adolt School pays no rent. Educational Testing Service pays $25 janitorial service for ndministering tests in the high school) ... bring in tuitionpaying sending districts or merge with small districts like Rocky Hill and refuse to comply with mandates unless they're funded by the body that issued them

"A Few Ideas ..." It all came about because Mr Nielsen, a member of last

"At Rotary the next week, we ran into each other," Mr. Nielsen recalls. "I told him I had a few ideas and he said, 'Terrific! Tell me about it.' Imagine a school superintendent willing to respond to such hare-brained ideas!"

Working as a professional consultant, paid from Dr. Houston's own discretionary fund, Mr. Nielsen hegan. He and Dr. Houston agreed that 'a committee was not the smart way to go - you needed an individual to think it through.

For Princeton, he served on the BRAC committee that studied high remodeling and on the committee that selected Dr. Houston. He also helped introduce program-hased hudgeting, and served as head of a panel on "Excellence" at the high school.

Dr. Houston sees "Strategy for the 80s" as a framework for board action. He thinks the board will "pick and choose" the elements in the report that seem appropriate, and he hopes the board will use the report for several years.

LITTER CRDINANCE Hearing This Week, The

foremost item on Township Committee's agenda for this Wednesday at 8 will be the public hearing on the so-called litter ordinance. This is an attempt to curb the continued distribution of unsolicited newspapers to homeowners have specifically requested discontinuation. Committee will meet in the meeting room of the Valley Road building.

The measure, which is expected to be adopted. requires distributors to register at Township Hall and to pay a $100 fee. Homeowners who don't want a particular free circulation newspaper or 'shopper'' thrown on their lawns may call the Township Clerk, who will keep a list of the requests and convey them to the distributor.

Distributors who do not comply with the requests not to deliver will be subject to fines and possibly imprisonment as provided in the penal code. The Township Clerk is also authorized to revoke or suspend a license for repeated violations.

The ordinance is similar to one in effect in Lawrence Township It has been introduced because of numerous complaints to the Township Clerk's office and the lack of response on the part of certain distributors.

In other business this week, Committee is also expected to hold a public hearing to authorize the expenditure of $119,000 to apply a two-inch bituminous overlay to the portion of Mt. Lucas Road between Ewing Street and the intersection of Herrontown Road. The state is expected to pick up $74,000 of the cost.

The state funds are contingent upon the job being completed this summer. Committee is concerned that if the Planning Board approves the application of Elizabethtown Water Company to erect a water tower on the Hahn property on Mt. Lucas Road the brand new overlay will he ripped up to install connecting water

Students to March on IDA Wednesday, Aiming New Demands at Old Target

To the echo of a ghostly, long-forgotten drum, Princeton University students will march on the Institute for Defense Analyses this Wednesday noon, assembling at 12 at Firestone Library on campus.

It was a dozen years ago that students began demonstrations at the old IDA building, then on the University campus. In those years, protest was against what students believed to be IDA's involvement in the Vietnam War. The target of this Wednesday's march is the new IDA installation on Thanet Drive, off Terhune.

In a flyer announcing the march, sponsors say they demand: "An end to the suicidal arms race; more money for human needs, none for nuclear weapons; no more military or strategic research done by IDA personnel or Princeton University faculty; all research and consultation performed by the IDA or Princeton University be subject to public scrutiny.'

"After the march," the flyer advises, "there will be civil disobedience.

IDA is a facility whose work has always been classified; however, it is known to be doing research in communications and codes.

Protesters charge that IDA research is concerned with 'counter-insurgency planning (currently in use in El Salvador), missile guidance systems, global nuclear strategy and weapons development."

The march will proceed from Firestone through Palmer Square, up Witherspoon, along Nassau to Harrison, down Harrison to Terhune. Those who have seen the flyer point out that marchers should first buy a map. Instructions have the march turning left from Harrison onto Terhune to reach IDA. The turn is to the right.

office has been charging 8 percent interest to delinquent tax payers on amounts up to $1,500 quarterly, or $6,000 a year, and 12 percent on amounts owing above $1,500 quarterly. The state law now permits 12 percent on the lower amounts and 18 percent one Borough garage. The on amounts over $1,500 Borough has set a limit of 1,200

Township Administrator Joseph R. Nini has recommended to Township Committee that the 18 percent be levied against the delinquent taxpayer with the larger holdings and that interest rate remain the same on the lower amounts. The change would not be implemented on the quarterly payment due May 1, hut a notice of the change would he sent out with the June tax bill and put into effect with the August payment

The enabling resolution is expected to be on the Township Committee agenda this Wednesday

Stuart Fund Established

The fund established at Princeton University to honor the memory of Donald C. Stuart Jr., a founder and the editor and publisher of TOWN TOPICS who died April 21, is now receiving contributions.

Checks should be made out to the Donald C. Stuart Jr. Memorial Fund, and mailed to David Thompson, Recording Secretary, New South, Princeton University. The institution has its own zip code: 08544.

The fund will be used to improve press facilities for inter-collegiate athletics. Baker Rink will probably be the chief beneficiary.

PUBLIC HEARING SET

For OR 6 Ordinance. Township Committee last Wednesday introduced an ordinance it has no intention of adopting The ordinance creates a new office-research and residential zone on the Etil Farm property on Rosedale Road, in accordance with recommendations of the Master Plan.

Committee might have simply not seconded a motion to introduce the ordinance, but Township Attorney Edwin J Schmierer recommended that the ordinance be introduced and go to the Planning Board for further comment He pointed out that under the state municipal land use law the governing body must set forth its reasons for not adopting a provision recommended in the Master Plan

Mr. Schmierer also said that the Ettl Farm property drew a lot of attention from neighboring residents and the public, and even though it was more expensive for the Township to go through all the motions of introduction, publication and public hearing, it would be better to give the public another opportunity to speak to the matter. The public hearing was set for Wednesday, May

The ordinance creates Office-Research Zone 6 and a residential, as well as nonresidential, option The underlying residential option envisioned the property as will no longer be provided on the R-1 zone, or two acre minimal lot size. For the nonresidential option the ordinance specifies 100 acres as the minimum lot size, which in essence is the whole property.

SHORTER MEETINGS?

Sharper Planning? A new policy which might speed up interminable Planning Board Board meetings. meetings will be discussed by Borough Council at its 8 p.m. work session this Thursday in Borough Hall. A formal ordinance is expected shortly.

Where a site plan is involved, the ordinance will require the developer perhaps Collins, for Palmer ог Princeton University — to put up an escrow amount. The Borough would use this money to pay a planner, chosen by the Planning Board, for assembling all the relevant material for presentation to the Board. This means the reports of zoning officer, engineer, Environmental Design Review Committee and so on.

With Assault. Brian Cupples, 25, 205 Nassau Street, and Michael Skivitsky, 23, 246 Nassau, have each been charged with assault by police, after they had allegedly engaged in a knife fight early Sunday morning on Nassau Street.

Mr. Cupples came to headquarters at 2:21 to report that he had been cut on the left arm. He was taken by Sgt. Thomas Procaccino to Princeton Medical Center where 16 sutures were used to close his wound. At the hospital, Sgt. Procaccino discovered that Mr. Savitsky was also being treated for a knife wound of the chest.

After being treated and released from the hospital, both were taken to headquarters and issued summonses. Both are scheduled to appear in Borough court May 20 Police say that their investigation is continuing

CAR FIRE SUSPICIOUS

Police Say. A fire in a car parked in a lot at Leigh Avenue and John Street is being termed suspicious by Township police

The entire front end and engine area of a 1972 Oldsmobile registered to Kim-Craig, 1 Margerum Court, was charred and burned, police said The fire was extinguished by firemen from Engine Company No. 1.

Ptl. Robert Nielsen had responded to a 5:26 call Sunday morning reporting the car ablaze. Police found lying near the side of the car a onegallon jug which smelled of gasoline. The investigation is being continued by the Township's arson investigator, Det. Norman Servis.

LAWRENCE MAN CHARGED

In Springdale Thefts. A Lawrence Township resident, David M. Hill, 34, 135 Texas Avenue, has been charged with the theft of two wallets and with the attempted burglary of a ground-floor room at the Princeton Inn Dormitory. Hill was later released in $200 ball, pending his appearance in court May

The Mercer County Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, which screens approximately one thousand calls yearly for assistance in civil liberties cases, will benefit from proceeds of a concert to be held Sunday, May 31 at 3 in All Saints' Church, Terhune and Van Dyke Roads.

Tickets, at $10 each with a $5 senior citizen and student rate, may be purchased at the door, or reserved through Estelle Kuhn, 921-7250, or Lucy Scanion, 924-7695. Checks may be sent to Mrs. Kuhn at 74 Woodland Drive,

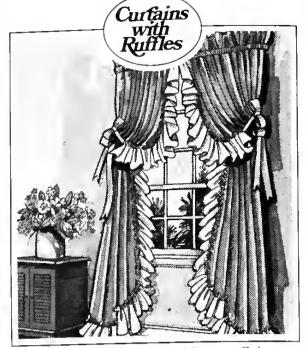

Wind and string instruments will perform, and the program will include works by Mozart, Viotti and Ihert, and a rarelyheard Nonet by Spohr for flute, oboe, clarinet, horn, bassoon, violin, viola, cello and contrabass. Flautist Jayn Rosenfeld is co-ordinator. Refreshments will be served following the concert, until 6

In addition to handling the case-work involved in requests for help, the Mercer County Chapter watches municipal legislation in both Mercer and Hunterdon counties, and intervenes where chapter officials believe local ordinances may have a negative effect on civil liberties.

For example, the chapter opposes passage of Princeton Township's anti-littering ordinance else thinking of Mother's Day.

Dear Family,

Based on past experience, I would like to make just a couple of suggestions about a Mother's Day gift ~ I think you need a little help.

Don't get me wrong. I loved last year's red underwear for the cold winter months and I'm sure that some day I will learn to fish so I can enjoy the waters you gave me two years ago - if I can remember where I put them. And the six dozen diapers the year the baby was born were really a life saver but this year....

The other day in the Montgomery Shopping lenter I stopped at this great new store called R.S. Stone, Store For Basics and I was simply amazed! The selection they have is fantastic! In one store I saw the Chicago Lutlery I had looked all over town for and at a great price. They had a beautiful English teapot and the most beautiful cookware called Magnalite I've ever seen! Now, to top that, they had the exact piece of needle point I've been looking for and every color of the rainbow in yarn for needle point and knitting.

Well, you might say that I liked what I saw at R.S. Store and I'm sure that you too could find something perfect for me in that great Tittle shop.

P.S. If you need more help, ask Bob at R.S. Slone - he's a really nice guy.

Kindergarten Registration This Week For Children Turning Five in November

If your child is eligible for kindergarten this September. you may register the child this Wednesday, Thursday or Friday, May 6, 7 and 8 at Littlebrook, Riverside or Community Park schools. Registration hours are 9-11 each day.

Children whn will be five on or before this November 30 are eligible. You must take the child's hirth certificate and medical record to the school when you register. Registration forms may be obtained from any elementary school office and filled out at home. Completed forms should then be taken to the school when you register.

Under state law, children must have the following immunizations before they can be admitted to school:

- · Diphtheria toxoid, pertussis vaccine and tetanus toxoid combination (DPT) - four doses.
- · Oral polio three doses, trivalent.
- Measles vaccine (live, if given after one year of age).

Many measles vaccines are given in combination with momps vaccine. If your child has had any other immunizations beyond these, the school would like to know.

The state provides educational programs for all handicapped pupils, and also evaluation services. If there is any condition that might affect planning for your child, you may talk it over with the school principal when you register.

AGENCY SEEKS FUNDS For Expansion. The Family Service Agency of Princeton has initiated the first capital fund drive in its 82-year

Marjorie Blaxill, president of the Agency's board, announcing the opening of a $200,000 campaign, said it will provide funds for renovating space to provide four additional offices in the 120 John Street headquarters Princeton as well as for the purchase and renovation of a new home for the Hightstown branch. An increase in the number of families using Agency services makes it imperative to acquire additional space if the Family Service Agency is to continue

Founded in 1898, the Family Service Agency is the second largest recipient of United Way support. In addition to professional family and marital counseling, provides alcoholism counseling, serves the needs of persons heing returned to the community following in-stitutional eare, assists migrant farmworkers, and serves as a consultant to day care centers. It offers seminars in family life Mr. Johnson, who has been education and workshops on stress management for industry

A rapidly expanding service the Management and Programs to Industries. The Agency serves as a training where Rutgers center University graduates social work students receive progressional training in counseling, group dynamics and administration.

Gracious Living in Princeton

Settle here on the celebrated Morgan estate, 47 acres of natural beauty in the midst of Princeton. Artfully clustered individual houses surround the mansion and offer the case of condominium living at Constitution Hill. Such contemporary pleasures as tennis court and swimming pool. blend comfortably with magnificent old trees, tormal gardens, pond and open fields.

The Joys of Unburdened Living

At Constitution Hill a full-time staff offers meticulous maintenance of your landscaping and residence. (Sunny growing space provided for ambitious gardeners). The houses are prewired with burglar and tire alarm systems, and a resident staff affords your property projection in your absence.

The Houses

Custom options offer the flexibility to personalize the interior of your home and its private landscapes. Designed to echo the graceful architecture of the Morgan mansion, the individual houses, constructed of brick, are contemporary and energy efficient. Skylights punctuate the copper-edged, steep-pitched roots and illuminate the dramatic interiors.

BIRCH LEAF MINER BIRCH LEAF MINER DAMAGE

(a "mined" leaf Brown leaves on your birch trees are probably the work of the birch leaf This tiny, black miner sawfly (a wasp species introduced from Europe) is one of the main causes of unsightly, declining birch trees in our area

Two to four generations occur per year, with the first generation getting started right now. The adults have been laying eggs in young birch leaves for the past week, and the young, worm-like larvae have already hatched and begun mining. They eat the tissue between the leaf surfaces, leaving a dried, brown, envelope-like leaf when finished. Hold a discolored or blotched birch leaf up to light and you will see the little creatures at work. After feeding for 10 to 15 days, the larvae leave the leaf. fall to the ground, and transform into adults. The adults emerge 2 to 3 weeks later, and begin the second generation

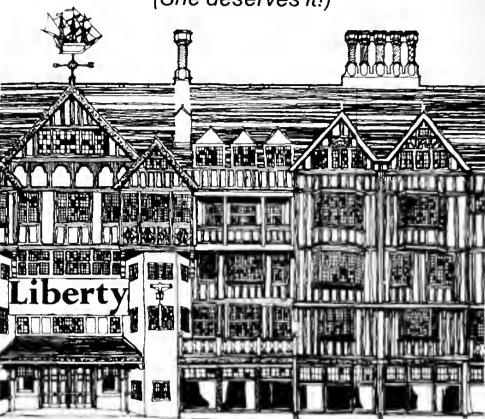

At present, insecticide sprays are the only means of controlling the birch leaf miner. Sprays should be applied this week, as the young, susceptible larvae are active. A second application may be necessary in 4 to 6 weeks. If your birch trees suffered severe defoliation last year, plan on protecting their health and beauty this year with a hirch leaf miner spray basic campus, endowment needs went unfulfilled until the current campaign.

Mr. Donaldson said that the campiagn's success "rested not on the contributions of a few large donors, but on the generosity of the majority of Hun's parents who gave more than half of the total funds. Alumni, trustees, faculty and former parents donated the balance," he said.

The volunteer campaign group was headed by Richard D. Hargrave of Princeton, a former parent, and George E. Claffey Jr. of Trenton, president of the Fathers Association. Former headmaster Dr. Paul R. Chesebro was honorary campaign chairman.

Currently the school has a capacity enrollment of 500 college-bound boys and girls in grades six to twelve; 160 students reside at the school.

feel everything I've done.'

Geraldine Boone, Princeton resident for 31 years, peoplehelper all her life, received last Thursday the award for Outstanding Service as a Volunteer, presented by the Princeton Area Council of Community Services at a luncheon at The Nassau Club.

A founder of the Youth Employment Service, the Princeton Study Group, the Unitarian Church, the Princeton Association for Human Rights; one of the starters of the Princeton Juvenile Conference Committee and a member for 17 years; foster parent; teacher of adults who want to know how to read.

And, currently, chairman of the Child Placement Review Board of the Mercer County Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court, and president of the board of the Mercer County Community Action

"I got started because I was hired as a phys. ed. teacher at a mental institution. They were short-handed in nursing, so I began taking care of patients. I was part of the process of helping people get well--and I loved that."

A "people person," strongminded, sometimes gruff, by means ''a bleeding-heart liberal,'' she reserves her harshest words for "man's inhumanity to man.'

"But things are definitely better than when I started, she believes. "There are more services to help people, more self-help groups, more awareness because things are out of the closet now.

"More blacks are in jobs they never would have had 30 years ago, and that is a big plus. Probably the black children in Princeton schools feel they have more of a chance than their parents did. Private schools have opened up, racially.

resolve--poverty, bad housing. bad health, family problems that can be really serious, and of course, racism.'

Geraldine Boone believes that whites don't really understand their built-in racism.

'A salesman will walk into an office and without thinking, approach the white and ignore the black, although the black person turns out to be the one he'll be dealing with.

'I know a black woman who told me she was serving tea for guests in a Princeton home. People were discussing black-white problems right in front of her! Not even knowing she was there, not considering her as a person. How insensitive!

"I feel strongly about minorities: I want the American democratic system For the Really Poor ... "Yet to work for them. The system some black leaders say that has to be accountable to all of for the really poor, things us, not just the rich and the

At first, I didn't realize how came to realize the imdifficult their problems are to portance of jobs, especially for minorities, when she worked with girls who had just been released from state institutions. That's why she conceived the idea of the Youth Employment Service.

Now, involved with foster children, she is trying to get the county's Division of Youth and Family Service to think about jobs: what happens to foster kids when they go out on their own at 18?

"A sense of responsibility is vital,'' Geraldine says firmly. 'Get to work--and shut up! I get so tired of gas-bagging! Some people say they'll do itand they do!"

She speaks warmly of The Friendship Club, a group of black women, now disbanded. The group raised scholarship money and gave the public library books on blacks when there were few such books around.

'That club disbanded because the members were all old. Where are the young blacks? The Friendship Club was one of those groups working quietly, responsibly, and accomplishing.

Her sense of unfairness toward minorities heightened when she began teaching an 18-year-old black youth from the rural south how to read and write.

'To learn 'Q,' the word was 'Queen' and he didn't know what a 'queen' was. He didn't know an umbrella, to learn 'U.' Kids being tutored at the Study Center, when that was in existence, were supposed to recognize objects they'd never had a chance to see!

As she talks--"so many interesting things in my life!' -she will remark, "I knew the warden of this prison pretty well, and so .. " or, "The police in Princeton are so nice! We have a lot of fun together...

She had the Council of Community Services invite to the luncheon, as her guests, 'my teachers'': Fletcher, executive director of the Community Action Council; John Singleton, its finance director; Mrs. Alfred Kornegay and Mrs. Douglas Epps, longtime Princeton friends, past and present juvenile officers of Princeton's two police forces.

And, of course, her husband, Rowan Boone.

"He taught me to listen," she says with a warm smile. "He deserves the higgest prize

Providing for Gifted and Talented Students

Have you been hearing about PEP from your elementary school age children? No, it is not a new offering on the lunch menu. PEP is an acronym for Potential for Enrichment and Performance, specifically a program which is the first step of a plan to address the needs of gifted and talented students in the district. This semester all children in Grades 3, 4, and 5 are meeting weekly for an hour and a half of enrichment activity in two six-week sessions. (Grades K-2 are conducting exploratory in-classroom activity.) Evaluation procedures will be conducted following each activity. All students are participating in the program now By next fall identification procedures will have targeted and grouped some of the most able students for more specific kinds of activities during this enrichment period. Paul Jennings, assistant superintendent and coordinator of the program, commented, "I want to emphasize the fact that all students will be involved in the enrichment program and that talented students will have specialized groupings within that program. We do recognize that additional opportunities for extremely talented students may need ultimately to be provided as well." Further refinements of the program and extension to higher grade levels will follow later

Members of the community will want to be aware of the philosophy undorlying the gifted and talented program as it was developed by a committee of administrators, laculty members, and parents. The focus is on identifying and developing potential in all students. The program, inclusive in nature, will attempt to involve a maximum number of students, including those with potential ability as well as those with demonstrated achievement

As part of the process of determining what 'dittedness" is, a survey was conducted in the elementary schools. There was broad agreement that a gitted child is one who has the potential for high achievement in one or more of such areas as general intellectual ability, creative thinking ability, and specific academic ability. Other areas of giftedness or talent mentioned by many included visual or performing arts, leadership, and athletic ability. The program hopes to address as many of these areas as possible.

During the summer of 1981 identification procedures for K-12 and an instructional plan for Grades 3.5 are expected to be completed. During the 1981-82 school your the district hopes to implement identification, initiate the "gitted" component of PLP. continue to evaluate and modify PLP, and plan an extension of the program to other grade levels.

In the identification process the teacher's primary role will be to provide information to a committee, which will have the responsibility of identifying gifted children and of developing appropriate program recommendations. Basic components will include, but will not be limited to, classroom performance. teacher nomination, tests, nomination by parent, peer, or self. The relevance of particular components will be weighted by the committee in selecting students for the program.

It is important for the community to understand that much thought and effort lie behind the proposals for a gifted program. They remain subject to change, frequent evaluation, and adaptation to meet developing needs

A Pine Street tenant told Council she and her family had lived in the same place for ten years, and had invested $700 in materials to improve the property.

"Landlords are entitled to a profit," she said, "hut they have no right to trample on the tenant. These new proposals seem fair to both sides. Why are landlords so opposed?"

COOKING CLASSES SET

At YWCA. The Princeton YWCA has arranged a banquet of cooking courses for the spring. A Cook's Tour and Feast, offered for one all-day session on May 28, includes a morning excursion to visit specialty food shops, green grocers and markets outside of Princeton. Fresh ingredients will be purchased and the group will prepare a full course meal to enjoy and discuss together. Chinese Cooking for Spring and Summer will explore a broad selection of light dishes with a sampling lunch following each class. The course is offered for six sessions beginning on May 1.

Menus for Many will explore the practical logistics of entertaining for large groups with ease and elegance. Focusing on both indoor and outdoor entertaining, the course is offered in two sessions on May 14 and 21. The principles and techniques of Microwave Cooking, including hot-weather ideas, will be offered in one session on May

Children in grades 6 through 8 are encouraged to bring a parent along and share Parent-Child Cake Decorating on May 27. Three Chocolate Desserts Made Easy will provide the know how for mousse, cheesecake and pie.

The Problem: How to handle "Special Orders"

Special orders, customer requests for out of stock items, used to be a common retail occurrence. The current attitude of many businesses is that "special orders" are a woste, and if a specific item you desire is out of stock, "too bod "

The Londou Solution: "Special orders" are another of the "vanishing old-fashioned services" we continue to offer our customers.

Ideally, we try to have what you want, when you want it (That's our business.) However, situations do orise when we are out of specific sizes. colors or styles.

What follows, then, is our "special order" process:

1) We double-check our order files to see if the specific garment you desire is already on order, if it is already on order we check onticipated delivery time and advise you. (We then notify you, by phone, upon arrival.)

If the garment is not on order we

- 2) Phone the manufacturer (using our outgoing mail order WATS lines) to check the availability and delivery schedule. If this information is immediately ovailable we so odvise you; if the information must be researched, we phone you when we are notified.
- 3) We explain that in most cases (65%) our special order attempts fail (even when the monufacturer confirms avoilability and delivery).
- 4) Even if your special order cannot be filled (we normally notify you by phone with a "status report" when we have definite information) you'll know that we really tried to help

Today unfortunately trying to help has become too complicated for most businesses. At Landou's though, we still think it's quite simple

Princeton Energy Group Expands Its Operation to Include a Construction Business

SUNSPACE INSTALLED: Princeton Energy Group designed and built the solar porch to this authentic, rambling, colonial house on Route 27. The addition is designed as a live-in heat collector which will provide some of the heat for the adjoining house as well as for its own space. Note the white insulating curtain which can be pulled to cover the glazing in the rool and the walls to minimize heat loss at night and provide shade in the summer.

Princeton Energy Group. founded in 1976 by Harrison Fraker, architect, and Larry Lindsay to provide design consultation in the energy field, has recently branched out into the construction business.

TOWN TOPICS, PRINCETON, N.J., WEDNESDAY,

From its experience in passive solar projects, the of being able to offer a customized design for an energy-efficient solar addition to a house at a reasonable cost. Because it also finds that the details of thermal efexplain or hand over to a building contractor, the firm is building these solar additions itself.

Charles (Chuck) Katzenbach. construction manager at PEG, and Vinton Lawrence, a designer and project manager, have recently completed the first of these sunspaces, as these solar additions are catled--an enclosed solar porch attached to the south wall of a dignified white clapboard Georgian house overlooking Lake Carnegie. They are currently constructing a second sunspace as an addition to an 18th-century stone house in Hopewell

A sunspace, as Mr. Katzenbach points out, is different in several important ways from a greenhouse attached to house. Greenhouses typically have single glazing in the roof and on the three sides not attached to the house. Thus they are subject to heat build-up during the day and heat loss at night, to extremes of temperature including a drop to the level of the weather outside at night

Source of Heat. Those like Mr. Katzenbach and Mr. Lawrence, who are in the solar energy business and acutely aware of the high costs of convertional heat, feel that a solar addition should at least provide its own heat and, if properly sited, designed and constructed, can also provide a significant percentage of the heat used by the adjoining house. It can also mean additional living space.

To function as heat source, a well designed sunspace must have some means for storing the heat that accumulates during the day and releasing it slowly during the night. This heat storage can come partly from the concrete slab on

In a frame house, PEG order to contribute heat to the might use a water wall-large house. PEG has found that transparent tubes set against glazing on the east and west the house wall each holding walls-the end walls-results in some 1120 pounds of water as heat loss in winter and firm finds itself in the position heat storage. Another method, overheating in the summer according to Mr. Katzenbach, when the sun is at a different is phase-change salts in tubes angle. which can be placed in a wall or hidden away, but which are therefore, has solidly built end currently very expensive. Curtain Must Be Pulled. A functioning solar addition also needs insulating curtains thinks But this is under opwhich can be pulled to cover the glazing on the roof and the front wall at night, PEG uses double layers of tempered insulating glass in the wall section and double-skinned acrylic for safety reasons in the roof section. The insulating curtain, which is white, provides the equivalent of a third layer of glazing when closed, keeping the heat in at night and providing shade in the summer.

Another necessary ingredient is a two-speed, thermostatically controlled fan, again sized to the sunspace, to vent excess heat in the summer. Mr Katzenbach says that the firm has tried roof vents but finds they leak both water and heat

A sunspace that is going to be a source of some of the heat requirements for the adjoining house must have vents cut into the second story, or at the ceiling of a one-story house. The heat rises through the vents and drops as it cools, forcing cool air from the downstairs back out into the sunspace through vents at floor level This creates what Mr. Katzenbach calls a natural thermo-syphon.

A key difference between a right moment. A more realistic figure might be 30 to 40 percent, he says.

Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Katzenbach are somewhat reluctant to discuss the cost of a solar addition. They are halancing the marketing of features that have become almost standardized and require less design time because of the firm's long experience in the solar field with customizing to fit particular requirements and situations. But they venture a figure of $65 a square foot, or $15,000 for a complete job, as a 'ball-park'' figure.

They are eager to "get a solar industry going," as Mr. Lawrence puts it. For people planning on making additions house their simultaneously wanting to cut fuel bills, the sunspace is a strategy to contribute a significant portion of the heating load, plus create a liveable space, he says. -Barbara L. Johnson

NEW LAFAYETTE ROAD WEST LISTING

Stately Matthew's built Stone Colonial in a quiet Western section location

A slate vestibule opens to an exquisitely appointed hall where large windows on the stair landing and the step-down solarium at the opposite end add light plus interesting dimensions. A marble fireplace compliments the spacious living room where French doors open to a walled terrace with awning and fountain and the lovely sequestered yard. Built-in china cabinets and French doors enhance the commodious dining room and a library with fireplace provides a quiet retreat

A side hall leads to a breakfast room, Butler's pantry, a large kitchen, storage room, porch and back stairway to two rooms and bath. There are four large bedrooms on the second floor Master bath plus two family/guest baths and ample linen storage. Two cedar closets in the attic Mud room joins house to a two-car garage with loft storage. Newly painted exterior, copper plumbing and a new gas furnace are a few of the many assets

A comfortably elegant home!

"Bold Type," 92nd Triangle Offering, Marked By Customary Talent, Zeal, Hilarious Kickline

AN INDIAN FROM INDIANA: It's only Bobby Moya, junior at Princeton and a member of the cast in Triangle's 1981 musical, "Bold Type," adapted from the Tarkington novel, "The Gentleman from Indiana." Moya is playing an Indian chief who scares the good citizens of Plattesville, Ind. back in the 1890s.

With customary talent and zest, some refreshingly oldfashioned idealism, a plotheavy libretto, and one of the funniest kicklines of recent memory, the Princeton Triangle Club last Thursday unveiled its 92nd annual production "Bold Type," a musical comedy based on the first novel by Booth Tarking ton (Princeton 1893), one of Triangle's founders and its first president

A drive to raise more than $100,000 in corporate support was announced this week by McCarter as a way to insure the revival of McCarter's holiday production of "A Christ mas Carol

The fund will also help maintain two programs associated with the production, special student matinees and interpreted performances for the hard of hearing. Both are jeopardized, says Gary Porto, the theatre's director of development, by proposed eyes in the National Endowment. for the Arts budget McCarter is seeking subsidy for these two programs in order to maintain the $3.50 ticket price that makes live. professional theatre accessible to children from all economic strata in the state "Mr. Porto said.

McCarter's student matinees and the interpreted programs for the deaf include educational components that help teachers build lesson plans around the performance so that the learning experience is a more comprehensive one, Mr. Porto explained

The two programs have had audiences of about 7,000 children each year. The program for deaf children was the first of its kind in New Jersey

No need to pinch pennies on an inferior imitation when the best costs so little!

Summertime, and the sitting is easy. And elegant. And comfortably priced. Because our classic summer collection combines highest quality with low prices.

We've featured both our low and high back chairs because we feel they are two of the best buys available anywhere. Made of strong steel wire with a heavy coating of super white PVC, our chairs are substantially heavier and more resistant to weather than the imitations. They have sculpted backs and arms with deeper, wider seats for greater comfort. Designed to stack for storage, they're available plain or with seat cushions in geranium red or nautical blue. And, what's inflation? The low back chairs are actually priced 20% lower than they were in 1979!

There's also a matching loveseat, two heights of handy, little stacking tables and 4 sizes of dining tables. Everything is completely weatherproof and won't rust or warp indoors or out.

We call it our summer collection. The prices make it the buy of the year!

Patriots Draft Crissy in 12th Kound; Gutzke to Join Vikings as Free Agent

Princeton football fans who enjoyed watching Cris Crissy play in Palmer Stadium during his college career may see more of him in the future if the all-fvy performer can win a spot at strong or free safety with the New England Patriots this sommer. He was chosen on the 12th round of the NFL

Crissy, who had his greatest soccess here as a split end, after being switched from tailhack, had played defense for his entire football career before coming to Princeton.

Last fall as the target of many a pass thrown first by Boh Holly and then Mark Lockenmeyer, Crissy set University records for most receptions (55) in a season and a career (96), and most yards gained pass receiving for one season

New England will also try Crissy on punt returns, a chore he handled extremely well for the Tigers. Crissy revealed that several clubs, the Grants, Tampa Bay, Dallas, Seattle and Cleveland, were interested in him as a free agent. He plans to attend a Patriots' mini-camp next week

The last Princeton football players to make it into the professional ranks all played here in the early 70's. Hank Bjorklund was a hack-up running back for the New York Jets, Carl Barisch played defense for the Cleveland Browns, and Karl Chandler started out as a free agent and caught on with the Giaots

While Crissy was the only Princeton player drafted, senior free safety Dave Gutzke has reached an agreement with the Minnesota Vikings, and will sign on as a free agent. He will report to their training camp this summer with about 70 other rookies

Brown linebacker John Woodring was the first Ivy player to be taken in the draft, he was tabbed by the Jets in the sixth round. Harvard quarterhack Brian Buckley, an 11thround choice, will also be at the Patriot's camp with Crissy These were the only lvy players drafted However, David Dorn, Rutgers' fine wide receiver, was selected in the eighth round by Kansas City the music sung at their wedding while she was in is labor, another asked to hear recorded sea sounds. If labor seems to be taking a long time, Familyborn offers a "pregnancy tea" ("It works every time," Mrs. Battle claims) or long soaks in a warm tub or shower.

Procedures such as enemas, not routine and will only be performed if the midwife feels shaves and episiotomies are they are indicated — and then only after explaining why. A mother is encouraged to walk around freely and to make Sherself a cup of tea in the kitchen while she waits.

The birth takes place in the double bed in the birthing Proom in any position that is comfortable. The support person and anyone else the mother chooses to have present remains throughout. Immediately afterward, the mother can hold the baby, and hegin breastfeeding if she likes. A heated up casserole brought in advance and stored in the Familyborn freezer serves as supper and later, if everything is medically fine, the father, mother and newest addition can all curl up together for a sleep - having never been separated in one of the most important moments in their life as a family.

The normal stay at Familyborn is 12 hours, and that is as flexible as everything else at the center. The nurse-midwife will pay a call at the home on the third day to see that all is going well, and a postpartum checkup at four weeks is also scheduled. The fee for all prenatal and postnatal care is License Application. This is not at the moment reimbursed by insurance, but Familyborn has applied to the state for a demonstration license, of the kind that is operable at an Englewood Cliffs birth center, which would permit reimbursement during a year of evaluation to create the standards by which a license would be granted.

In addition to serving as a hirth center, Familyborn accepts women for routine gynecological services, which range from $30 for the first visit and $20 for subsequent
